Hello! I was on council when we had some discussion about this. My understanding then and now is that there are no city regulations that apply to bee keeping. My neighbors have honey bees and they are interesting to watch in summer. I personally prefer the diverse community of native bees (sweat bees, mason bees, cuckoo bees, bumblebees etc) but I cannot begrudge someone for wanting honey bees.

I'm a graduate journalism student at UM and I'm trying to write a story for a class about local beekeeping. I'm having trouble finding out anything about regulations within city limits. I've spoken with the county extension office, the department of ag and animal control and everyone seems to think another group is in charge of bees. I've found evidence of an ordinance discussed in city council meetings from 2011, but nothing since then. Are there indeed any hobbyist beekeeping regulations in Missoula? I would appreciate any help you could give me at your earliest convenience. My cell phone number is 814-392-1636.

Subject: Potential Interview

Hello,

My name is Wayne Stevenson and I am a student at University of Montana's school of journalism. I am doing a story for UMNews, which is broadcast on KPAX and KTMF, and was wondering if I could get any city council members to speak with me before next Tuesday on matters involving Missoula and population growth. A quick response would be appreciated, as I am trying to get a source list together for this story. This will be an on-camera interview.

Thank you,

Wayne Stevenson
